If William Delaney, the "fighting en-incer," on the Bamberger road, fails incer," on the Bamberger road, fails plot in the forfeit game into gineer," on the Bamberger road, fails to guess right in the forfeit game into which he forced himself, he will find that "Heavy, heavy hangs over your head," is a reality and not the fiction head." is a reality and not the fiction head." is a reality and not the fiction of the play-game. The best guess that Delancy can make is to keep away from Salt Lake, or he will feel the weight of six months on the chain gang where the rocks are moved by muscular and not mechanical power. Delancy came into the courtroom forfeit game through two of his latest escapades. A few weeks ago he undertook to thrash his conductor because the latter ventured the opinion that the engineer was running his train ahead of time. That incident was just being forgotten when Delancy revived all the old memories Sunday night by insultof time. The project of the control of the control

George Bruz, the Polander accused by Mrs. Theresa Hoffman of the theft of $51.75, violated the traditions of the hardened courtroom today when he broke down and cried. Whether through fear of the courtroom, or the angulsh of the helpless innocent, Bruz gave way completely, and in his collapse was unable even to give a coherent answer to his attorney. The Polander, a young fellow of perhaps 22 or 24 years, with only a smattering of the English and innocent-looking in his duli comprehensive guileless appearance, was up before Judge Bowman to plead to the charge of grand larceny. It was after his attorney had entered a plea of not guilty and was arranging for the date of hearing that Bruz broke down. The date of his hearing was set for Thursday, and in default of bail he is still in the custody of the sheriff. tody of the sheriff.

LYON FILES DEMURRER.

Mr. Lyon says that his contention is supported by numerous authorities which will be cited when the arguments are heard. The legal question connected with the violation of the law by the commissioners in awarding the contract secretly will be dealt with in the arguments.

THE SOUTH WELCOMES GRANT

C ENERAL FREDERICK GRANT must have been as surprised as he was gratified at the warmth of the reception tendered him in the heart of the South. Brave men cherish few enmities against brave foes, and the Confederate veterans paid a tribute to the son of the Federal commander which brought tears to his eyes. In what other country in the world would the wounds of a great civil conflict have been healed so quickly and completely? The scars remain, but they are honorable scars, honored alles by those who lear them and alike by those who bear them and

The old-time "rebel yell" in Memphis is no longer a menace to a general of the United States army, but a cheer of compliment to the officer who wears the uniform of a reunited country and serves under a flag that waves proudly over us all. The "Stars and Bars" floated in a thousand banners, not as the rival, but as the companion of the "Stars and Stripes."

The recent trip of the battleship Mississippi up to Natchez, the cordial fraternity of Captain Fremont and his officers with the leading citizens of Louisiana and Mississippi, the great celebration at Petersburg, in which North and South joined hands, the visit of President Taft to Virginia and North Carolina and the mingling of the blue and gray at Memphis, all point to a restoretion of the Southern States to their rightful place in the States to their rightful place in the nation.—Baltimore Sun.

"Your awnings," said the awning man in the New York Sun, "would last longer and look better if you'd dry 'em out when they get wet.

dry 'em out when they get wet.

"Some folks will leave their awnings down to soak and drip all through a heavy rain. I never could understand why people do that; of course it doesn't do an awning any more good than it would any other fabrie to soak it in that way and then drip may fall on the awning from the roof and flying soot may lodge on it, and so if you keep your awnings down in the rain the first thing you know they are faded, discolored and dingy.

"If you want to preserve your awnings you want to haul them up when it rains, but if they get wet, why, then when the air is right you want to lower them and let them dry out, and be sure they're dry when you furl 'em before you go away in the summer."

The decision of the department at Washington to increase the cost of running the Sait Lake office by nearly $15,000 a year may be taken as a good proof of the way the local office has grown, and it may be considered at index to what the department at Washington thinks of the future growth of Sait Lake. Thus far this year the increase has been from 15 to 22 per cent every month over the business of last year. The present month bids fair to eclipse everything in the history of the office, "At the same rate for the next 10 days as has been recorded for the past 25 days the increase in the Sait Lake office this month will be all of 25 per cent over last July," said Postmaster Thomas this morning. last July," said Postmaster Thomas
